

2. New York Klimakonferenz vom 8. bis 10. März 2009. Über 1000 Teilnehmer aus aller Welt erwartet!

geschrieben von EIKE | 24. Februar 2009

Führende Köpfe unter den 70-plus-Vortragenden sind:

* Der amerikanische Astronaut Dr. Jack Schmitt- der letzte noch lebende Mensch der auf dem Mond war.

* William Gray, von der Colorado State University, führender Forscher für tropisches Klima. * Richard Lindzen, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, einer der weltweit führenden Experten für dynamische Meteorologie, insbesondere planetarer Wellen.

* Stephen McIntyre, Haupt-Autor von Climate Audit, ein Blog für die Analyse und Diskussion der Klima-Daten. Er schrieb eine verheerende

Kritik der Temperatur Aufzeichnungen der letzten 1000 Jahre, insbesondere die Arbeit von Michael E. Mann, dem Schöpfer der berüchtigten "Hockey Stick"-Grafik. Diese Grafik – inzwischen in wissenschaftlichen Kreisen gründlich diskreditiert – sollte angeblich beweisen, daß die Menschheit verantwortlich ist für einen starken Anstieg der Temperatur durch Treibhausgase.

* . Arthur Robinson, Kurator der Oregon-Petition, die inzwischen von mehr als 32.000 amerikanischen Wissenschaftlern darunter mehr als

10.000 mit Doktorgrad unterzeichnet wurde. Sie lehnen die Behauptung, die globale Erwärmung sei menschengemacht ab und treten der Panikmache, daß die globale Erwärmung die Erde in die Krise treibt, entgegen.

* Willie Soon, Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics.

* Roy Spencer, University of Alabama in Huntsville, Hauptwissenschaftler und Teamleiter auf der NASA-Satelliten Aqua Mission

Ausrichter ist das Heartland-Institut, ein 25-jähriger nationaler unparteiischer Think-Tank mit Sitz in Chicago. Alle Kosten der Veranstaltung werden durch Eintrittsgelder und individuelle Stiftungen und Sponsoren für Heartland getragen. Es wurden keine Mittel von Wirtschaftsunternehmen angefragt oder Patenschaften für die Veranstaltung akzeptiert. Anmeldungen hier: Heartland New York Conference

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON CLIMATE CHANGE

MARCH 8 - 10, 2009 · NEW YORK CITY

Is the global warming crisis over? Was it ever really a crisis?

Two of thousands of scientists now say the media and environmental advocacy groups have it all wrong. That global warming is not a crisis. They point to a cooling trend in global temperatures since 2000, past warming and cooling cycles that were not unusual, and new evidence that carbon dioxide is not a very powerful greenhouse gas.

On March 8-10, 2009, the 2009 International Conference on Climate Change will provide a platform for scientists and policy analysts from around the world who question the theory that global warming is a crisis.
