

Trump nennt Klimawandel-Krise ‚Fake-Wissenschaft‘, Greenpeace schäumt vor Wut – und wird der Lüge überführt

Patrick Moore, co-founder of Greenpeace:
"The whole climate crisis is not only Fake News, it's Fake Science. There is no climate crisis, there's weather and climate all around the world, and in fact carbon dioxide is the main building block of all life."

[Übersetzung: Patrick Moore, Mitbegründer von Greenpeace: „Die gesamte Klimakrise ist nicht nur Fake News, es ist Fake-Wissenschaft. Es gibt keine Klimakrise, es gibt Wetter und Klima auf der ganzen Welt, und tatsächlich ist Kohlendioxid die Hauptgrundlage für alles Leben auf der Erde!“]

Für Viele ist das eine Kampfansage, und Greenpeace hat bereits zurück geschossen, offensichtlich sehr empört. Aber gleichzeitig demonstrieren sie damit, um was für eine Bande von Lügner es sich bei dieser Organisation handelt:

Patrick Moore was not a co-founder of Greenpeace. He does not represent Greenpeace. He is a paid lobbyist, not an independent source. His statements about @AOC & the #GreenNewDeal have nothing to do with our positions.

[Übersetzung: Patrick Moore war kein Mitbegründer von Greenpeace. Er repräsentiert Greenpeace nicht. Er ist ein bezahlter Lobbyist, keine unabhängige Quelle. Seine Aussagen über @AOC & den #Green New Deal haben nichts mit unserer Haltung zu tun.]

Das Problem dabei: Sie sind diesbezüglich bereits der Lüge überführt, denn: Das Internet vergisst niemals:

The founders of Greenpeace

In October, 1969 the US Atomic Energy Commission exploded a nuclear bomb on the tiny island of Amchitka, located near Alaska, in one of the most earthquake-prone regions in the world.

Many feared the blast would result in an earthquake. Five years earlier, a quake that killed 115 Alaskans had sent waves crashing on to the beaches as far away as Japan.

On the day of the blast, 10,000 protestors blocked the major US-Canadian border crossing, unfurling a banner that read: "Don't Make a Wave. It's Your Fault if Our Fault Goes". The US ignored the protests, and promptly announced plans for another test in 1971.

In 1970, the Don't Make A Wave Committee was established; its sole objective was to stop the second test. The committee's founders and first members included:

- Paul Cote, a law student at the University of British Columbia
- Jim Bohlen, a former deep-sea diver and radar operator in the US Navy
- Irving Stowe, a Quaker and Yale-educated lawyer
- Patrick Moore, ecology student at the University of British Columbia
- Bill Darnell, a social worker

Darnell came up with the dynamic combination of words to bound together the group's concern for the planet and opposition to nuclear arms. The committee was renamed Greenpeace.

The group organised a boat, the Phyllis Cormack, and set sail to Amchitka to "bear witness" (a Quaker tradition of silent protest) to the nuclear test. On board were:

- Captain John Cormack, the boat's owner
- Jim Bohlen, Greenpeace
- Bill Darnell, Greenpeace
- Patrick Moore, Greenpeace
- Dr Lyle Thurston, medical practitioner
